The voluntary services of Cluster Resource Persons have further strengthened the programme, acting as its true backbone.

Media Support and Wider Reach

Alongside Vijayapatham, the Trust recalled its earlier educational initiative, 'AI for Young Minds.' It also acknowledged the constant editorial and media support provided by Muddam Narasimha Swamy, Editor and Media Boss, for amplifying the programme's impact.

The Trust expressed appreciation for print and electronic media professionals who carried the initiative to the grassroots, ensuring wider public awareness.

A Growing Movement Across Telangana

What began as a focused effort has now grown into a statewide educational movement. Vijayapatham has reached 83 government schools across multiple districts of Telangana, standing as a testament to its success and relevance.

Guided by the belief that 'students are the nation's most valuable and inexhaustible wealth,' the DNR Trust continues to uphold the philosophy that education is the greatest form of charity. Educationists and well-wishers hope that these noble efforts will expand further in the years to come,
