Analysis:

The director, Srinivas Mallam, delivers a strong social message through this film. He effectively conveys that honor killings do not bring dignity but rather disgrace, as the perpetrators themselves end up being labeled as murderers. The film succeeds in making a bold statement against societal prejudices, offering a lesson to both the younger generation and their parents. With a balanced mix of comedy, emotions, songs, and action sequences, the film holds audience engagement. Srinivas Mallam deserves full credit for executing his vision effectively.
